

Regulating Workplace Risks

A Comparative Study of Inspection Regimes
in Times of Change

David Walters

Cardiff University, UK

Richard Johnstone

Griffith University, Australian National University and University of Sydney, Australia

Kaj Frick

Malardalen University, Sweden

Michael Quinlan

University of New South Wales, University of Sydney, Australia and Middlesex University, UK

Geneviève Baril-Gingras

Laval University, Québec City, Canada

Annie Thébaud-Mony

INSERM (National Institute of Health and Medical Research), Université Paris13, Bobigny, France

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of figures and boxes	ix
List of tables	x
List of abbreviations	xi
Preface and acknowledgements	xv

PART I REGULATORY INSPECTION AND THE MANAGEMENT OF OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY: INTERNATIONAL PERSPECTIVES

1. Introduction: inspecting health and safety management and the consequences of restructuring in the modern world of work	3
Introduction	3
Why focus on labour inspection?	5
The panacea of management	6
The difficulty of organizing – and supervising – effective OHS management	8
The changing world of work	9
Labour inspection and change	11
The focus of the study	13
The structure of the study	16
2. Regulation of health and safety management: a developmental perspective	21
Introduction	21
Changing approaches to regulating OHS	23
A focus on management	36
Changing work relationships and organization	40
Conclusions	43
3. The development of regulatory inspection of health and safety at work	44
Introduction	44
Ways of thinking about OHS regulation and inspection	45
Emergent themes in the historical analysis of inspection	53
Changing ways of thinking about regulation	54

Regulatory inspection responses to the changing world of work	58
Conclusions: the challenge for OHS inspection	60

PART II NATIONAL EXPERIENCES

4. The shift to occupational health and safety process standards in Australia	65
Introduction	65
Australia – political and economic context	66
The Australian industrial relations system	69
Recent changes in work organization and labour markets	70
Reform of the industrial relations system	73
A history of OHS regulation in Australia	74
An overview of the Australian OHS regulatory model	76
Conclusion	84
5. Inspecting occupational health and safety process standards in Australia	86
Introduction	86
The Australian study of the implementation of OHS process standards	86
Implementation of performance and process standards in Australia	89
Conclusion	113
6. The regulation of systematic work environment management in Sweden – higher ambitions in a weaker Swedish work environment system	115
The SWEM reform as an early and broad OHSM regulation	115
Sweden – and its work environment	116
1890–1989: the development of a voluntaristic work environment system	120
1990–2010: the SWEM reform and its implementation	127
SWEM requires more while SWEA and other actors can do less	138
7. Implementing systematic work environment management in Sweden – interpretation by SWEA and supervision by its labour inspectors	141
The SAM project on SWEA's implementation of SWEM	141
SWEM-promotion in non-inspected workplaces	146
A successful inspection process	150

The supervision promoted more effective SWEM procedures	152
Less focus on SWEM as a continuous improvement	154
The half-full supervision is in line with SWEA's guidance	157
More obstacles than support for SWEA to fully implement the SWEM reform	160
8. Regulating health and safety management, the changing world of work and public policy in the UK	167
Introduction	167
Regulatory requirements on health and safety management	168
The implications for inspection	174
Recent regulatory policy	178
Institutions of inspection and control	180
Change and the challenges for regulating health and safety management	186
Conclusions: the implications for inspection	188
9. Inspection of health and safety management in the UK: current realities	191
Policies and practice in regulating OHSM	191
Evidence of the practice of inspection of OHS management	194
Governance and policy drivers for the regulatory agency under New Labour and beyond	198
Evaluating the consequences of the regulator's response	204
Conclusions: getting more for less from the inspection of OHS management – hints of success or failure?	208
10. The Québec mandatory OHS 'Prevention Programme'	213
Introduction	213
The place of the Prevention Programme requirement in the inspectorate actions	220
Changes in the labour market and work organization, the OHS regime and the inspectorate actions	232
The Prevention Programme and the political economy of the 30-year period since the adoption of the AOHS	239
Conclusion	243
11. Occupational cancer in France: a challenge for OHS management	245
Introduction	245
The French labour inspectorate system	247
The challenge of restructuring	253
A critical assessment of quality, standardization and regulation	256
Standardization and the law	258

Regulation relating to the prevention of cancer in France and the adequacy of existing surveillance	261
Occupational exposure to carcinogens and occupational cancer in France	264
A new model of surveillance and prevention	270
Conclusion	275

PART III THE IMPLICATIONS OF CHANGE

12. Regulatory inspection and the impact of requirements for systematic OHS management in five countries	279
The scope of this chapter	279
The regulation of OHS management	280
A profile of the regulatory inspectorates for health and safety at work in the countries studied	283
Inspecting health and safety management arrangements	288
Trends in the resourcing of inspection and their implications	295
The impact of restructuring work on inspection strategies and practice	299
Conclusions	308
13. Conclusions: ways of understanding regulatory inspection of OHS management in the modern world of work	310
Introduction	310
The emergence of process regulation	311
The role of regulatory inspection	313
An explanatory framework for regulatory failure	314
The impact of change	316
Public expenditure, visions of 'health' and the weakening of regulatory inspection	322
The future?	327
References	331
Index	369

Figures and boxes

FIGURE

11.1	New compensated cases each year between 1985 and 2007	270
------	---	-----

BOXES

8.1	The management approach of the HSW Act 1974	168
11.1	Three categories of carcinogens	268
11.2	Methodology of the permanent survey on occupational cancer in Seine-Saint-Denis	271

Tables

4.1	Proportion of employees by size of business in Australian jurisdictions	67
5.1	Interviews conducted with agency staff and others	87
5.2	Accompanied workplace visits with inspectors	88
5.3	Accompanied workplace visits by inspectors by industry sector	88
5.4	Number of inspectors by Australian jurisdiction: 2001–06	90
5.5	What was examined by inspectors during workplace visits	92
5.6	What was examined by industry – numbers (rank)	93
5.7	Duration of inspector visits by industry	94
5.8	Workplace visits: type of visit	96
5.9	Who was spoken to by inspector during visit	101
5.10	Enforcement action taken during visits	104
5.11	Actions taken by OHS inspectorates in Australia 2001–06 by jurisdiction	105
6.1	The state's motive for intervention	120
7.1	The levels and integration of the SWEM-supervision	156
10.1	Coverage of the economic activity sectors by the regulations respecting the PP, HP, JOHSC and WSR	218
11.1	The key statistics of labour inspection in France and overseas districts, 2008	252
11.2	Rate of exposed jobs by economic sectors	273