

WORLD POLITICS

Jeffrey Haynes

London Metropolitan University

Peter Hough

Middlesex University

Shahin Malik

London Metropolitan University

Lloyd Pettiford

Nottingham Trent University

Longman
is an imprint of

PEARSON

Harlow, England • London • New York • Boston • San Francisco • Toronto
Sydney • Tokyo • Singapore • Hong Kong • Seoul • Taipei • New Delhi
Cape Town • Madrid • Mexico City • Amsterdam • Munich • Paris • Milan

Brief contents	v
List of boxes and case studies	xiii
List of tables	xvii
Guided tour	xviii
Preface	xx
Acknowledgements	xxii
Abbreviations	xxiv
Maps	xxvi

Part One: International Relations and Globalisation 2

1 International Relations and Globalisation in the Twenty-First Century	4
International Relations and globalisation	6
Why is globalisation important for understanding International Relations?	9
Technological, political, economic and cultural globalisation	11
Important post-Cold War changes affecting International Relations	17
Understanding globalisation	20
Conclusion	23
2 International Order, International Society and Globalisation	26
Fundamental aspects of international relations following the Peace of Westphalia (1648)	28
International order and international society after the Cold War	34
Globalisation, international order and international society	35
Conclusion	43

Part Two: The History of Globalisation and International Relations 46

3 International Relations from the Early Nineteenth Century to the Second World War	48
European nationalism and imperialism	51
The First World War and International Relations	58
The League of Nations: an attempt to build an international organisation to maintain collective security	60
The legacy of the League of Nations	64
Conclusion	65
4 International Relations after the Second World War	68
International relations after the Second World War	69
The United Nations	71
The Cold War and nuclear weapons	76
The international relations of the developing countries	80
Conclusion	87

5 After the Cold War: International Relations in a Globalised World	90
Introduction	91
International relations after the Cold War: the impact of globalisation	95
New World Order: more cooperation, less conflict?	97
Competing norms and values in international relations after the Cold War	100
Trends in post-Cold War international relations: security, economy, ideology and development	102
International relations in the twenty-first century	108
Conclusions	110
Part Three: International Relations Theories	112
6 Realism and Neo-Realism	114
Context	116
The 'back-story' to Realism	117
Realism in International Relations	119
Key assumptions	123
Key concepts	127
Conclusions and criticisms	129
7 Liberalism	132
Context	134
The 'back-story' to Liberalism	135
Liberalism in contemporary International Relations	138
Key assumptions	141
Key concepts	142
Conclusions and criticisms	149
8 Marxism and Neo-Marxism	152
Context	154
The ideas of Marx	156
The ideas of Lenin	158
Dependency Theory	159
World Systems Theory	160
Key concepts	161
Conclusions and criticisms	169
9 Critical Theory	172
Context	174
Contemporary Critical Theory and IR	179
Key concepts	181
Conclusions	187
10 Alternative Approaches	190
Theoretical context	192
Postmodernism	192
Feminism	196
Green Theory	203
Conclusions	209
11 Social Constructivism	212
Social Constructivism as a bridge between the traditional theories	214
Agency and culture in IR	219

A Social Constructivist reappraisal of IR's key concepts	221
The empiricists strike back? Critiques of Social Constructivism	228
Conclusion	230

Part Four: International and Regional Cooperation 232

12 Intergovernmental Organisations 234

What is an intergovernmental organisation?	236
The evolution and diversity of IGOs	238
IR theories and IGOs	248
Conclusions	252

13 Global Multi-Purpose IGOs: The United Nations and the Organisation of the Islamic Conference 254

Intergovernmental organisations and globalisation	255
The United Nations and international law	257
The UN Charter	259
The five permanent members of the UN Security Council: permanent privileges	261
Organisation of the Islamic Conference (OIC)	262
The OIC: history and development	263
The OIC as an international relations actor	267
Conclusion: comparing the UN and the OIC	271

14 Regional Organisations and Regionalisation: Theory and Practice 274

Introduction	275
Regional cooperation and globalisation	276
Old regionalisation and new regionalisation	279
The North American Free Trade Agreement	282
Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation	288
Conclusion	293

15 The European Union and the African Union 296

Introduction	297
The European Union	298
The African Union	307
Conclusion	315

Part Five: Current Global Issues 318

16 International Political Economy, Part I: Theory and History 320

What is IPE?	321
A short history of IPE	323
Approaches to IPE	328
The contemporary trading system	333
The contemporary international monetary system	335
Conclusions	339

17 International Political Economy, Part II: Key Actors and Controversies 342

The IMF and World Bank	343
International trade organisations	347
Multinational corporations (MNCs)	351
Theoretical perspectives on the actors of IPE	354
Conclusions	358

18 Development, Poverty and Inequality	360
The persistence of global poverty	361
Approaches to development	367
The evolution of development policy	371
Conclusions	380
19 Gender by Emma Foster	382
Context	384
Gender approaches to IR	384
Gender and security	386
Gender and international development	390
Future developments	395
Conclusion	397
20 Identity and Identities	400
Forms of identity	402
Theorising identity	410
Conclusions	419
21 Democratisation	420
What is democracy?	421
The three waves of democratisation	423
What can make democracy permanent?	429
Democratisation by force – ‘nation building’	433
Is democratisation important for international relations?	435
Conclusions	438
22 Human Rights	442
The evolution of the idea of human rights	444
The United Nations and the codification of human rights	446
Implementing human rights	452
Are human rights ‘right’?	459
Conclusions	462
23 The Natural Environment	466
The emergence of political ecology	468
The globalisation of political ecology	476
Global environmental policy and human security	480
Threats to the global consensus on environmental policy	485
Conclusions	487
Part Six: War and Peace	490
24 Security Studies: Outlining a Discipline	492
Defining security and outlining the categories	493
Defining security – framing the debate	495
The debates in Security Studies	497
Conclusions	510
25 Liberalism and Security	512
Introduction	513
Categorising Liberal strands	516

Analysing the strands	516
Conclusions	526
26 Dissatisfaction with Traditionalism: Critical Security Studies	530
The origins of Critical Security Studies	531
Feminist perceptions of security	534
Critical International Relations Theory: Ken Booth and the Welsh School	540
The Copenhagen School	545
Conclusions	547
27 The Globalisation of Human Security	550
The dimensions of human security	552
The broad view of human security – freedom from want	553
The impact of globalisation	556
Problems with the broad view and attempts to narrow the concept	560
Conclusions	569
28 Failed States	572
September 11 and state failure	575
Why ‘failed states’ matter	578
The rise of non-state groups	580
Political violence and failed states in Africa and Europe	583
Conclusion	590
29 New Wars and the Privatisation of Conflict	592
Establishing connections	594
The impact of globalisation and the role of Private Military and Security Companies	596
Security and the private sector	598
Conclusions	607
30 Nuclear Deterrence and Proliferation	610
Achieving stability during the Cold War: Mutual Assured Destruction and US strategic doctrine	611
Deterrence and the nuclear non-proliferation regime in the post-Cold War era	625
Where does this leave us?	630
Conclusions	632
31 Peacekeeping and Humanitarian Intervention	634
The original purpose of the United Nations and early peacekeeping	635
Peacekeeping during the Cold War, 1945–1989	641
Maintaining international peace and security in the post-Cold War era	646
Conclusions	655
32 Terrorism and Political Violence	658
Categorising terrorism	659
Defining terrorism and the impact of religion	661
State and sub-state terrorism	672
Ethno-nationalist terrorism	675
Conclusion	677

Part Seven: The Future

680

33 Conclusions: Sovereignty, Globalisation and the Future of International Relations

682

Sovereignty

683

Towards global civil society?

690

Towards global governance?

692

Conclusion

698

Glossary

700

Bibliography

717

Index

739