

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Fourth Edition

ANDREW SANDERS
RICHARD YOUNG
AND MANDY BURTON

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface	xi
Table of Cases	xv
Table of Statutes	xxv
1 The aims and values of 'criminal justice'	1
1.1 The nature and structure of 'criminal justice'	1
1.2 Guilt and innocence	9
1.3 Adversarial and inquisitorial theories of criminal justice	13
1.4 Recent trends in criminal justice and crime	17
1.5 Crime control and due process	21
1.6 The fundamental (human) rights approach	28
1.7 Managerialism and the rise of actuarial justice	38
1.8 Victims	42
1.9 An alternative framework: the enhancement of freedom	47
1.10 Conclusion	57
2 Stop and search	60
2.1 Introduction	60
2.2 The power to stop-search	72
2.3 Is stop and search racially discriminatory?	97
2.4 Constraints and controls on the exercise of discretion	100
2.5 The impact of stop-search powers	113
2.6 Conclusion	126
3 Arrest	129
3.1 Introduction: what is an arrest?	129
3.2 Arrest and the purposes of criminal justice	132
3.3 The legal basis for arrest	140
3.4 Arrest discretion and reasonable suspicion	155
3.5 Remedies for wrongful arrest	186
3.6 Conclusion	191

4 Detention in the police station	195
4.1 Introduction	196
4.2 The powers and duties of the custody officer	197
4.3 Detention without charge	207
4.4 Deaths in custody	223
4.5 The right to legal advice	228
4.6 Remedies	249
4.7 Conclusion	251
5 Police questioning of suspects	255
5.1 Questioning: the drift from due process to crime control	255
5.2 Why do the police value interrogation?	257
5.3 The right of silence	260
5.4 Regulating police questioning	272
5.5 'We have ways of making you talk'	287
5.6 Confessions	312
5.7 Conclusion	319
6 Non-interrogatory evidence	323
6.1 Introduction	323
6.2 'Information received': the use of informers	325
6.3 Covert policing	334
6.4 Witness and identification evidence	343
6.5 Entry, search and seizure	350
6.6 Scientific evidence	360
6.7 Conclusion	367
7 Prosecutions	370
7.1 Introduction	370
7.2 Discretion	372
7.3 Evidential sufficiency: police and CPS	376
7.4 The public interest, the police and the CPS	394
7.5 Non police-prosecution agencies	410
7.6 Prosecution accountability	423
7.7 Conclusion	434

8 The mass production of guilty pleas	438
8.1 Introduction	438
8.2 The sentence discount principle	440
8.3 Sentencing powers and jurisdictional pressures	460
8.4 Charge bargaining	463
8.5 The prospect of conviction	481
8.6 Fact bargains and multiple discounts	485
8.7 Do the innocent plead guilty? (Is the Pope a Catholic?)	486
8.8 Should plea bargaining be abolished?	489
8.9 Conclusion	496
9 Summary justice in the magistrates' court	499
9.1 Introduction	499
9.2 Legal aid and legal representation	503
9.3 Justices' clerks and legal advisers: liberal bureaucrats?	514
9.4 Bail or jail	518
9.5 The quality and fairness of summary justice	536
9.6 Specialist magistrates	550
9.7 Conclusion	551
10 Trial by judge and jury	553
10.1 Directed and ordered acquittals – weak cases?	555
10.2 The composition of the jury	559
10.3 The verdict of the jury	569
10.4 Trial: procedure, evidence and law	579
10.5 Evaluating the jury's performance	593
10.6 Narrowing the jury's domain	602
10.7 Conclusion	606
11 Appeals against conviction	609
11.1 What values should underpin appellate procedures?	609
11.2 Appeals from the magistrates' courts	613
11.3 Appeals from the Crown Court to the Court of Appeal	621
11.4 Post-appeal review: The Criminal Cases Review Commission	642
11.5 Conclusion	658

12 Remediating police malpractice	663
12.1 Introduction	663
12.2 Prosecutions	665
12.3 Civil actions	672
12.4 Complaints against the police	679
12.5 Trial remedies	700
12.6 Malpractice: individual fault or the system at work?	712
12.7 Conclusion	716
13 Victims, the accused and the future of criminal justice	719
13.1 Introduction	719
13.2 Taking suspects' rights seriously	720
13.3 Taking victims' rights seriously	725
13.4 Rhetoric and reality: managing the gap	741
Bibliography	747
Index	803