

Men and Masculinities in the Sagas of Icelanders

GARETH LLOYD EVANS

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Table of Contents

List of Abbreviations	xiii
Primary Sources	xiii
Dictionaries	xv
Introduction	1
Overview and Methodology	1
Old Norse–Icelandic Literature	3
Íslendingasögur	4
Gender and Masculinity	5
Why Study Masculinity?	7
1. Modelling Saga Masculinities	10
Hegemonic Masculinities	15
Producing a Model of Hegemonic Masculinity for the Íslendingasögur	23
2. Homosocial Masculinities	27
Homosociality and Medieval Literature: A Theoretical Digression	28
Homosociality as Valued and Desired	33
Gift Giving and the Maintenance of Homosocial Bonds	40
Social Obligation and the Maintenance of Homosocial Bonds	42
Men Judging Men	44
Self-Policing Masculinities	47
Dominating Men	49
Dyadic Instability	52
Triangularity	56
Fosterage	59
Concluding Remarks	61
3. Intersectional Masculinities	63
Youth	64
Youth and the Crisis of Masculinity	75
Old Age	78
Race	83
Impairment/Disability	87
Sexuality	91
Religion	99

Socio-Economic Status	102
Concluding Remarks	106
4. The Limits of Socially Acceptable Masculinity	107
Grettir as a Child	110
Further (Hyper)Masculine Attributes	121
Homo(Anti)Social Relations	126
Positive Homosocial Relations	132
Interactions with Supernatural Characters	135
Homosociality and the Problem of Ill Luck	138
Concluding Remarks: Social Failure and the Critique of Hegemonic Masculinity	142
Conclusion	144
Works Cited	149
Index	163