

Twenty-First Century Fiction

What Happens Now

Edited by

Siân Adiseshiah

Senior Lecturer in English, University of Lincoln, UK

and

Rupert Hildyard

Principal Lecturer in English, University of Lincoln, UK

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
1 Introduction: What Happens Now Siân Adiseshiah and Rupert Hildyard	1
2 'Such a Thing as Avant-Garde Has Ceased to Exist': The Hidden Legacies of the British Experimental Novel Jennifer Hodgson	15
3 Tough Shit Erich Auerbach: Contingency and Estrangement in David Peace's Occupied City and Kate Summerscale's The Suspicions of Mr Whicher Phil Redpath	34
4 When the Two Sevens Clash: David Peace's Nineteen Seventy-Seven as 'Occult History' Dean Lockwood	49
5 Remaindered Books: Glen Duncan's Twenty-First Century Novels Alice Bennett	66
6 'The journey creates us. We become the frontiers we cross': Stepping Across Lines in Salman Rushdie's Shalimar the Clown Daniel O'Gorman	81
7 'The Private Rooms and Public Haunts': Theatricality and the City of London in Michel Faber's The Crimson Petal and the White Lin Pettersson	97
8 'This is my Opa. Do you remember him killing the Jews?' Rachel Seiffert's 'Micha' and the Transgenerational Haunting of a Silenced Past María Jesús Martínez-Alfaro	115
9 A Voice without a Name: Gothic Homelessness in Ali Smith's Hotel World and Trezza Azzopardi's Remember Me Emily Horton	132

10	Ghosts of Postmodernity: Spectral Epistemology and Haunting in Hilary Mantel's Fludd and Beyond Black Wolfgang Funk	147
11	Intimations of Immortality: Semiologies of Ageing and the Lineaments of Eternity in Contemporary Prose Lucy Perry	162
12	Crosshatching: Boundary Crossing in the Post-Millennial British Boom Jude Roberts	183
13	'You just know when the world is about to break apart': Utopia, Dystopia and New Global Uncertainties in Sarah Hall's The Carhullan Army Iain Robinson	197
14	Finding the Right Kind of Attention: Dystopia and Transcendence in John Burnside's Glisters Florian Niedlich	212
	Select Bibliography	224
	Index	232