

International Criminal Justice

---

Gideon Boas

Barrister-at-Law; Professor, La Trobe Law School, La Trobe University, Australia

Pascale Chifflet

Lecturer, La Trobe Law School, La Trobe University, Australia

PRINCIPLES OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

 Edward Elgar
PUBLISHING

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

---

Preface	ix
1 What is international criminal justice?	1
I Introduction	1
II Retributive conceptions of international criminal justice—war crimes trials	3
III Restorative justice	12
IV Different disciplinary approaches and concerns with international criminal justice	17
V Conclusion	24
2 International criminal justice and history	26
I Introduction	26
II The ancients: optional restraint	27
III The Age of Chivalry	29
IV Hagenbach and other anomalous trials	31
V The Westphalian system: the modern period until 1914	33
VI First World War: abortive attempts at justice	37
VII The Second World War	41
VIII The Cold War	47
IX The revival of international criminal justice: the 1990s	51
X The twenty-first century	55
XI Conclusion	58
3 International criminal justice and politics	60
I Introduction	60
II The relationship between politics and law	60
III The politics of international criminal justice	69
IV Legal responses to international criminal justice	89
V Conclusion	92
4 International criminal justice and psychology	93
I Introduction	93
II The psychology of genocide	94

III	Retributive conceptions of international criminal justice	114
IV	Restorative conceptions of international criminal justice	126
V	Conclusion	135
5	International criminal justice and responses to terrorism	136
I	Introduction	136
II	Definitional problems	142
III	The international law framework	146
IV	The use of force as a response to terrorism	156
V	The erosion of human rights	167
VI	Future directions and conclusions	191
6	International criminal justice and transitioning societies	195
I	Introduction	195
II	The challenge of transitional justice	196
III	Retributive approaches to transitional justice	197
IV	Restorative approaches to transitional justice	204
V	Reconciling restorative and retributive approaches	215
VI	Conclusion	220
7	International criminal justice and hope—some concluding remarks	222
I	Introduction	222
II	Nuremberg Trial	224
III	The International Criminal Court	225
IV	Ending impunity	227
V	Political expectations: a global good?	233
VI	Conclusion	235
	Index	237